Dialog A.

- Hello.
- Hello, can I help you?
- Yes, I think so. We need to make an essay about the history of our town. I thought there will probably be some interesting materials here.
- Yes, if you are doing a research we have some absolutely unique sources here, like old brochures, newspapers and magazines. They are in the archive, but you can use them after a preliminary request.
- Can I borrow them for a day or two to work at home?
- Absolutely not! They are for use here only!

Dialog B.

- Busy?
- Not really. Just browsing internet for the information. We're organizing a historical party at school and I need anything related to the history of our town.
- I don't think you can find anything really interesting on the web. But if we go upstairs to granny's room..
- Why?
- When I was small she shoved me mother's collections of news clippings, old photos, letters and postcards. She kept all of it in her chest of drawers. And I'm sure the collection is still there.
- Why didn't you mentioned this archive ever before? Let's have a look at it right now. It sounds very interesting!

Dialog C.

- Excuse me, where can I collect my parcel? Here is a notification.
- I'm sorry, but I don't think you can collect it.
- Why?
- The parcel came in March. Can you see the date on the stand there? It's May already! We don't keep parcels here for longer than a month.
- Did you send it back to the library? There are materials I ordered from them; I need them for my research.
- I'm sorry. But those are the rules.

Dialog D.

- This is the oldest part of our town. Some buildings, the old post office and the railway station dated by the 18th century. And you can see that they are built in the traditional colonial style.
- Are they in use now? I mean they are only the historical museums now, aren't they?
- No, the buildings are in good operating order. And provides services for customers. Right in front of the post office you can see a photo exposition. It gives a good idea of what this street looked like a hundred years ago. Let's go there and have a look at it.

Dialogue A

- A: Did you come here to read?
B: Why not? It's very relaxing. Don't you think so?
A: You'll get burnt. And I'll get bored. Let's have a quick swim!
B: Later. Let me read up to the end of the chapter. And you can bring us a couple of cones of ice cream if you feel bored. Strawberry ice cream for me.
A: Ok. Would you like some lemonade too?
B: No, thanks, I've got some water in the bag.

Dialogue B

- A: Are you sure it's just what we need?
B: No, I'm not. In fact, I don't know whether Kristy likes fantasy books or not, but I don't have any other idea of a present.
A: Neither have I. Ok, let's take it. It looks nice and it's well illustrated.

B: Where can we pay?

A: The cash desk is over there. Wait a minute, I'll take this one for myself. Just for easy reading on the bus when I go to the swimming pool. It's a 30-minute ride and I get bored.

B: OK. Take it and let's go. I'm not going to spend the whole day here.

Dialogue C

A: Are you busy?

B: No, not really. I'm just reading for my literature exam. Why?

A: How about some tea with biscuits? It's already served.

B: Super! Can I have some marmalade with my tea too?

A: It looks like we've run out of it. Sorry. I'll buy some tomorrow on my way to the office.

B: Oh, never mind! It's ok. I'll just make a few notes and will be with you in a minute.

Dialogue D

A: How long will it take us to get to the beach?

B: Oh, we've already passed the city centre... and now we are turning into the main road... Something around thirty or forty minutes.

A: So long? Have you got anything to read?

B: There must be something in the bag. I usually have a book or a magazine or at least some comics when I'm on a long trip. Here you are.

A: Thanks. Oh, it looks interesting. And you track the route, not to miss our stop.

B: Don't worry. It's the last stop. We can't miss it anyway.

- I'm glad to hear that. How did you manage with the math's test?

- I did well, I think. It wasn't really difficult.

- You must be very hungry, you've left your lunch box on the kitchen table today.

- Oh, yes. I discovered this on the lunch break. It was a great disappointment.

- Did you eat in the canteen?

- No, I didn't like the food there, you know that.
- And I don't have anything ready for you at the moment. I've just come in. it was a hard day, lots of customers, everyone's looking for Christmas gifts. But if you wait a while, I'll cook spaghetti.
- Don't worry, mom. I just get my lunch box. I'll eat what's there and we'll have dinner later when dad comes home.
- Ok, if that's what you want. And remind me, what time do you plan to finish work tomorrow?
- The shop closes at 6 p.m., why?
- Your cousin Diana called, she's arriving tomorrow at 8 p.m. and she asked if you could pick her up from the airport.
- Oh, it's a 2 hours drive there and the same time back again. But, ok. I'll set off to the airport straight from work.
- And how about buying Christmas gifts? Are we going to put it off?
- Looks like it. But don't worry, it's still a week before Christmas. We'll have time to buy you a snowboard. That's what you are worrying about, isn't it?
- Yes, actually I worry about arrange with some friends for they could teach me how to ride it. And as an exchange I'll teach them how to ski.
- I see. You'll get your present on time, don't worry. And how the forecast says this winter will be very good for all that kind of fun in the snow. They promise the nicest and the snowiest winter in years.
- Well. I felt so disappointed about the weather last year, remember that?
- Yeah. It was very unreliable. Snow, rain, sled, slush.
- And I practically had no chance to ski.
- Let's hope you'll make it this year.

It is a well-known fact that the Russians are a reading nation, as it is impossible to imagine our life without news, newspapers, magazines and books. Millions of copies of them appear every day, and they are usually sold really quickly.

Most newspapers contain news, reviews of books, films and events, art and TV shows, sports events covers, detailed articles on international and home affairs. The majority of magazines contain news about celebrities, reviews of various events and a huge number of detailed articles on different aspects of daily life. The most common thing for mass media nowadays is the big amount of advertisements everywhere.

I believe that it is quite easy to find newspapers and magazines for teenagers, but I don't think that they read paper versions a lot. We have the Internet access nearly everywhere, that is why a lot of magazines and newspapers have on-line, or so-called digital versions. When young people read such mass media sources they learn much about every day life all over the world. Some people read foreign magazines and learn a lot of English phrase and words.

I am the one, who prefers digital magazines and newspapers, that are better than my newsfeed on any social network. I prefer reading English versions of my favourite magazines, they help me master my skills and broaden my horizons.
